W. E. B. DuBois famously stated that “the problem of the twentieth century is the problem of the color-line,” and this slim volume tracks twenty-first-century data along that line. This statistical snapshot of black Americans examines how bias is affected (and, surprisingly, not affected) by demographics and numbers. Chapters include "Education," "Entertainment and Sports," "Health," "Justice," and "Politics, Voting, and Civic Engagement." Each set of statistics is ...
